1 PROCEEDINGS

3 (Whereupon, the proceedings began at 1:30 p.m., on 4 Tuesday, September 20, 2005, in Courtroom C.)

6 THE COURT: I want to take care of these motions
7 such as they are. And before we break up, to discuss the 8 potential settlement of this case. We have a motion for -- on 9 behalf of Central Transport, a motion for reconsideration.

10 Mr. Cohen, what do you want to tell me?

11 MR. COHEN: Your Honor, I think the papers speak for 12 themselves. I don't have anything to add.

13 THE COURT: Then let me get that order on the 14 record. This is an order.

15 ORDER

16 Presently pending before the court is a motion for 17 reconsideration filed on behalf of Central Transport. The 18 purpose for a motion for reconsideration, of course, is to 19 "correct manifest errors of law or fact or to present newly 20 discovered evidence." Max's_Seafood_Cafe_by_Lou-Ann_v.

21 _____
Quntieros, 176 F.3d 669 (3rd Cir. 1995). The appropriate

22 _____
grounds for granting such a motion is to -- (1) an intervening
23 change in the controlling law; (2) the availability of new 24 evidence that was not available when the court granted the 25 motion for summary judgment; or (3) the need to correct a clear

1 error of law or fact to prevent manifest injustice. Having
2 reviewed the criteria, I find none of them applicable. The 3 motion for reconsideration is denied.

4 There's also a motion for reconsideration of Central
5 Transport's motion for summary judgment insofar as it relates
6 to Count I of the complaint, by plaintiff?

7 MR. PENDLETON: Correct.

8 THE COURT: Is there anything else you want to tell
9 me about that?

10 MR. PENDLETON: Only the fact that the motion by 11 Central Transport was not properly supported because none of 12 the undisputed issues of fact were mentioned in the concise
13 statement. Therefore, because the motion was not properly
14 supported in the first instance, it should not have been 15 granted.

16 THE COURT: The issue is a pure question of law, it
17 seems to me. That is whether or not there is a private cause
18 of action. Isn't that right, essentially?

19 MR. PENDLETON: To a certain extent, yes. But I
20 would think that one disputed fact or issue of fact that needs
21 to get resolved is whether or not the Secretary of 22 Transportation or its designee still takes jurisdiction over
23 these types of complaints.

24 THE COURT: All right. I'm now going to enter an
25 order.

1 ORDER

2 Presently pending before the court is a motion for
3 reconsideration filed on behalf of Accu-Spec. In the interest
4 of brevity, I incorporate herein by reference as is fully set
5 forth, the applicable standard for a motion for 6 reconsideration, which I described in conjunction with my 7 previous order.

8 The question presented here is whether or not a
9 private cause of action exists under 49 U.S.C. Section 14704,
10 et seq. In Count I of the plaintiff's complaint a cause of 11 action is pled against both Logistics and Central Transport
12 claiming damage, claiming monetary damages for damages to 13 goods, specifically the X-ray machine that was shipped.

14 Having carefully reviewed the matter, I find myself
15 in agreement with the rationale of the court in Hoover_v.

16 Allied_Van_Lines,_Inc., which is 111 P.3d 1076, 2005 WL

17 1277952. Wherein, the court had an occasion to address or to 18 fashion the extent to which a party may recover damages for 19 damages to goods under 14704. Although, the primary thrust of 20 that discussion involved the entitlement to a claim of 21 attorney's fees. In any event, the court made the following

22 observation:

23 "In Owner-Operator_Independent_Drivers_v._New_Prime,

24 192 F.3d 778, 783-84 (8th Cir. 1999), the court interpreted

25 Section 14704(a)(2) to authorize private parties to sue for

1 damages for carrier conduct in violation of regulations

2 promulgated by the Secretary of Transportation."

3 The court then continued: "Unfortunately for the

4 Hoovers, their cause of action was not based upon AVL's

5 violation of any regulations promulgated by the Secretary of

6 Transportation ... the Hoovers' lawsuit was limited to recovery

7 of damages to their household goods during shipment. The

8 parties do not disagree the statutory authorization for fees

9 under Section 14706." The court then went on to deny the 10 attorney's fees.

11 Here, in my view, the plaintiff is not seeking

12 damages in Count I as a result a "violation of any

13 regulations," it is seeking damages for damages to the goods.

14 Which is precisely the type of damage that the Carmack

15 Amendment anticipates.

16 Consequently, the motion for reconsideration is
17 denied, and Central's motion for summary judgment as to Count I
18 is granted.

19 Now, incidentally, Mr. Knox, you did not move for 20 summary judgment, did you?

21 MR. KNOX: I did not, judge.

22 THE COURT: Then we have the plaintiff's motion to
23 deem request for admissions admitted due to insufficient
24 responses. Assuming that these are admitted or deemed 25 admitted, as a practical matter, what does it mean, are these

1 largely directed at damages?

2 MR. PENDLETON: They are. And they establish most
3 of the damages that Accu-Spec is claiming with respect to 80
4 percent of it.

5 THE COURT: Have you had a chance to see his motion?

6 MR. COHEN: I briefly reviewed the motion and jotted
7 down some notes, I didn't know we were going to address it
8 today. I could summarize my thoughts of this.

9 THE COURT: Why don't you do that?

10 MR. COHEN: Your Honor, with regards to the 11 reasonable charges there for Central Transport, there are three
12 requests or requests for admission which counsel for Accu-Spec
13 is requesting to be deemed admitted. Number three, which 14 essentially asks for the reasonability of charges to be deemed
15 admitted. There's one main problem with deeming the charges
16 reasonable. In this case --

17 THE COURT: Which charges are we talking about?

18 MR. COHEN: They're talking about, let me look at 19 the language in the first request for admission. There's a
20 group of documents attached to the request for admission,
21 including correspondence and some invoices and some billings
22 and some modifications to bills. This request for admission
23 says the charges represented by these invoices was reasonable.
24 The first thing we had trouble with, there was no set numbers
25 associated with these attachments. So it required a judgment

1 call on the part of Central Transport. One of Central
2 Transport's main defenses is whether certain charges demanded

3 by Accu-Spec are not recoverable pursuant to the Carmack

4 Amendment.

5 THE COURT: Because they're consequential --

6 MR. COHEN: Consequential, incidental damages.

7 THE COURT: That doesn't go to the reasonableness of 8 recoverability.

9 MR. COHEN: That's true. The issue becomes really
10 if they are reasonable, I guess the next step for Central
11 Transport is a motion in limine to preclude --

12 THE COURT: This sort of smacks of how many angels
13 can you fit on the head of a pin, it's somewhat ridiculous.
14 The motion for requests of admission is denied. This will just 15 shake itself out if it has to go to trial. Counsel, can I see
16 you in chambers, we'll talk about getting this thing resolved.

17 MR. KNOX: Judge, if I may, just with respect to the 18 count on the 14704, you correctly pointed out we did not file a 19 motion with respect to that.

20 THE COURT: Right. Are you going to orally move
21 now?

22 MR. KNOX: Yes, I'm orally moving now.

23 THE COURT: It's granted.

1 concluded.)
